The philanthropic Do-Gooders Club was honored with the National Disease Resource Interchange's (NDRI) Outstanding Spirit Award at "An Evening To Celebrate Science" on May 15 at the Rittenhouse Hotel. The group, newly formed this year, was recognized for its fundraising efforts on behalf of NDRI (www.ndriresource.org), the Philadelphia-headquartered national research and resource organization that connects donated human tissue with the scientists who need it to develop new therapies and cures for diseases ranging from diabetes, heart disease and cancer to HIV, neurological and rare diseases.
